Course Description and Target Audience

The purpose of this presentation is to move beyond the basic principles of Motivational Interviewing by introducing specific techniques to elicit change talk while advancing into Phase 2 methods. Participants will receive the most recent information regarding Motivational Interviewing as a therapeutic style as well as engage in demonstrations of specific approaches. Information presented is a formulation of up-to-date research. The techniques covered exhibit utility in a therapeutic setting, areas of brief intervention, as well as the foundation of training other providers in the basic principles of Motivational Interviewing. There are no known risks to this presentation.

The target audience is mental health providers (advanced doctoral level psychology trainees, psychologists in practice, master's level clinicians etc).

Learning Objectives

- Participants will be able to describe the basic principles of Motivational Interviewing (MI); including the "spirit" of MI and its place in a therapeutic setting.
- Participants will be able to explain specific tactics for encountering resistance.
- Participants will be able to communicate regarding change talk and will be able to demonstrate techniques for eliciting change.
- Participants will be able to explain when and how to move into Phase 2 of MI as well as the strategies for navigating and aiding in change.

Video Homestudy Format

CE's for this homestudy training will be earned through completing the following tasks:

- Watch the presentation video and review all provided documents in their entirety.
- Pass the post-test questionnaire with at least 80% correct (15 of 18 questions correct).
- Fill out a program evaluation form.
