Course Description and Target Audience

The course will present background information about brain development and the effects of trauma. The rates of sexual abuse in individuals with developmental disabilities will be compared to those without a disability. Trauma-related responses of those with intellectual disabilities will be offered along with the goals for therapy and specific interventions to heal the trauma. There are no known risks associated with this presentation.

The target audience is mental health providers (advanced doctoral level psychology trainees, psychologists in practice, master's level clinicians etc).

Learning Objectives

- Describe the effects of trauma on the development of the brain.
- Identify areas of brain that are associated with specific psychiatric symptoms or disorders related to trauma events.
- List trauma-based responses by individuals with an intellectual disability (ID).
- Demonstrate specific interventions that are effective with individuals with ID.

Video Homestudy Format

CE's for this homestudy training will be earned through completing the following tasks:

- Complete the pre-test questionnaire (10 questions).
- Watch the presentation video and review all provided documents in their entirety.
- Pass the post-test questionnaire with at least 80% correct (8 of 10 questions correct).
- Fill out a program evaluation form.

Presenter Information:

Loretta Fuge, Psy.D., spent her postdoc year in a residential setting working with individuals with intellectual disabilities and a psychiatric condition. She conducted evaluations, performed individual and group therapy, and provided crisis interventions to the clients. Dr. Fuge has over 8 years experience working with the developmentally disabled as a therapist and psychologist and served as the clinical director of Arc of the Ozarks for approximately two years. She continues to work with individuals with ID and provides consultations to a variety of providers providing residential services. She also conducts staff training on working with individuals with dual diagnosis; intellectual disabilities and psychiatric condition.
